LITTLE GIRL'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Catching of Foot in Switch Frog Prevents
Her Being Mangled by Onrushing
Southern Pacific Train

As the Southern Pacific passenger train leaving San Francisco at 9:40 a. m. was coming into Richmond yesterday, at about 10:30, the engineer and fireman were horrified to see a little girl running towards the track where the street intersects the railroad right of way north of the Santa Fe overhead crossing. The engineer threw on the emergency brakes and whistled a frantic warning, but the child continued running, apparently bewildered and frightened. When she was within a few feet of the main line and it seemed to the men in the engine cab that she would soon be a mass of mangled remains, her foot caught in a switch frog of the adjoining

CASE OF LEPROSY IS DISCOVERED HERE

Health Officer Blake has discovered what is believed to be a case of leprosy in Richmond. He has seen a number of cases in the Hawaiian Islands, and the Richmond case has all the appearance of being typical. While the disease has not reached an advanced stage, the fingers, toes and other portions of the body have been attacked. The patient is Mrs. Ramoyda, living on North Fifteenth street, with her husband. They have been living here about a year. It appears that she has been under treatment for some time, under the belief that she was suffering with another malady, and the case was not reported at once. Dr. Blake called an Oakland physician who has had considerable experience with leprosy and he said that the local case presented all the symptoms.

The State Board and the University have been notified, and representatives of both will be here today to investigate.

Leprosy is not a communicable disease, except by close and continuous contact, and it develops very slowly. While the husband shows no sign of the disease at the present time, he might not for ten years.

The case has been isolated and an officer has been stationed to prevent any communication with the patient. If it should prove to be a case of leprosy, just what disposition will be made of the unfortunate woman is a matter of conjecture. There is no leprosy in this state and no legal provision for the disposition of such cases.

W. O. W. AFFAIRS

Woodmen of the World will give a dance at their hall on May 16th. Elaborate preparations are being made by E. H. Wilmore, A. L. Sherman and D. Ingram. A table cover, now on display at La Moine's drug store, at Ninth street, will be raffled off that night.

WRECK IN THE SUBWAY

A man named Fredrickson, an employee of the Union Iron Works at Oakland, had a narrow escape from death in the subway last evening. When his motorcycle got beyond his control and he was thrown. His machine struck a bump and threw him onto the raised board walk, after which the motorcycle to which was attached a side car, wrecked itself against the steel uprights. The rider was not badly injured.

AN APPEAL TO ALL FOR MEMORIAL DAY

The following appeal for a patriotic observance of Memorial Day has been issued by the Ladies of the G. A. R.:

"The time of the year approaches when we are to be enjoined and plans are being formulated for enjoying this year when the call to rally to our principles of government is being so strongly urged, causes true Americans to think. Decoration Day, May 30, is a holy day, a sacred day when this nation is called to respect and honor those men, living and dead, who presented us a nation. This day can be put to a better use than for picnics or any kind. Patriotic exercises will be held at Sunset Cemetery, where all who wish may gather with members of the patriotic organizations and be refreshed by inspiration from days gone by and gain courage for the days to come. Many have expressed their desire to join the G. A. R. in this spirit of patriotism."

On a thousand baseball fields they celebrate a war. That made the land a charnel place, and left a vivid scar. On football and in picnic they bet and shout, and only you, old man in blue, recall what it's about.

To only you, old man in blue, the vivid vision comes. Or battle cloud and blasted men. You hear the long drum drum. And as today you feel marred to where your comrades sleep. Your faded eye marks where you'll lie, a scant three paces deep. Come, spare five minutes from your sport to toast the nation's brave. Let's give a hand-clasp to the man who stands beside his grave. Let shop and field be silent a little while today. Then here's to you, old man in blue: God speed you on your way.

VALLEJO INVADES RICHMOND

There will be a battle royal this afternoon at First street grounds, when Vallejo's unbeaten warriors meet our "Shoutout Elks." This promises to be the most interesting game so far played on the local diamond and we wouldn't be surprised if somebody not expecting it would get beat. The enemy squadron, led by "Mike" Carroll, was sighted on the horizon this morning with a large vanguard and in all probability will arrive about 12 m.

Our boys are in battle array, eagerly awaiting their arrival, when with the bombardment of "Babe" Hollis they expect to conquer the enemy. Game called at 2 sharp.

CASEY-GEHARDT

The wedding of W. G. Casey and Miss Esther Gebhardt will be solemnized this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, on Santa Fe avenue, Rev. Frank Linder officiating. The young couple will return to live in Richmond after a short honeymoon, at 330 First street. The bride-to-be is a popular member of the Royal Neighbors, and the young Benedict is a popular fraternal man.

Two per cent of the $2,518,000,000 and national banks and trust companies in the country have applied for $138,274,000. At this rate total applications for subscriptions to the first issue will reach seven billion six hundred million dollars.

Early reports today indicate that banks and trust companies in New York state will subscribe nearly 50 per cent of the first issue. The largest single subscription yet received by twenty million came from an institution in New York.

Editorial Comment

THINKOGRAPH SUNDAY TALKS.

Having consolidated The Thinkograph magazine with the Sunday edition of the News, we hardly know what sort of editorial dope to write that will interest both sets of readers. One set lives in Richmond, and are interested in local politics, local enterprises and in opinions and comment upon local affairs. Another set lives all over the United States and some in foreign lands, and blessed if we know exactly why so many thousands of them ever did subscribe for The Thinkograph, unless it was because we write things somewhat different than other writers do. Now, we must try to interest this big family of readers, at home and abroad, and probably the best way to do that will be to sort of ramble along aimlessly and write any old thing that seems to be worth writing, and let it go at that, for people are people, the world over, no matter where you find them.

People here in California are not much different from people in New York, Chicago, Oshkosh or Hongkong. Only their sectional differences are apparent, and after those little idiosyncrasies are broken through the same human nature shows through. Wherever you go people have good hearts in them, as a rule, and as a general thing are brave and generous, home-loving, God-fearing, law-abiding men and women. There are exceptions to these rules, of course, but the rule holds true, just the same. If you are hungry and deserving, they will feed you and help you, to some extent, at least, and if you are grief-stricken they feel sorry. But, when it comes to dollars and cents, then they stop up the walls of their better natures, and proceed to grab every dollar you have if you don't bury it deep or guard it with machine guns.

People are regular Dr. Jekylls and Mr. Hydes when it comes to these opposite sides of their natures. Socially they are all that could possibly be expected, but in a business way they are tricky and not always even honest. Probably that is because of the inherent traits of human selfishness and the instincts of self-preservation, which is said to be the first law of nature. Anyhow, we would trust many people with our honor, our good name, our wife or earthly goods when we would not trust with a dollar and a half in real coin.

We thought seven years ago when we came to California that probably out here by the placid Pacific, where the sun shines warm and the land is covered with beautiful flowers, where fish was plentiful in the seas, gold in the mines, fat cattle on the hills and orange groves growing in the vales, that it would be different, but, bless your heart, no—it is the same in California that it is in Kalamazoo. They are out after the kale, all right, and are not averse to five or six profits instead of one if the other fellow is any relation to the sucker tribe. And being a Native Son don't seem to alleviate the disease even a little bit. But then that's the way it is at Pictou, Nova Scotia, Staten Island, Palm Beach, Wichita or Timbuctoo.

LOCAL AND YET GENERAL.

Now there are some things happening out here at Richmond, California, that you Sunshine Club members of The Thinkograph family will probably be quite interested in, as they bear upon a question of general interest just now all over the world, and that is the food situation. We have traveled to about every burg in the United States and a few outside, and as near as we can remember the inhabitants of every one of them were interested vitally in the subject of something to eat.

Richmond has started something in the food line that ought to be and doubtless will be emulated in a thousand other places before long, and that is for the city government to undertake to reduce the cost of living to the people in general.

The city council here appointed a food commission, of a number of the active citizens, and as this scribe is one of the commission, he has kept track of the project very thoroughly, and will tell about it here, briefly, in order that other communities may know and get busy along the same lines, for it is a grand good thing just at this time when war conditions are changing everything.

The food commission started two municipal markets; employed trucks to go out into the agricultural districts and buy up vegetables, eggs, and farm products, berries, fruit, etc. It employed men with boats to go out into the bay and ocean and fish and bring in the catch—all kinds of good sea food. It set men and teams to plowing and turned over many acres of town lots lying idle within the city limits, and planted many acres to potatoes and beans, and next season will have this land in condition to raise everything that land raises anywhere in California.

The small fund necessary to start came out of the city treasury, and now the municipal markets are self-sustaining and paying their own way. As soon as the food is accumulated ahead it is turned back to the city from whence it came, and thus the "loan" is repaid. All the fish, vegetables and farm products are sold to the people from the municipal markets at actual cost. The profit of the wholesaler and jobber is done away with; the profit of the retailer is done away with, and when the growing crops are harvested even the profit of the producer will be obviated. Nobody makes any profit. Nobody is paid a cent of salary except those hired to do the necessary work. The commission donates the services of its members; the large land owners donate the land; at one of the markets the owner of the building donated the rent. Can you beat it?

At these markets nothing is delivered. People must bring their baskets and take it away with them—market baskets are furnished at 10 cents each, first cost. The fish and other sea food is wrapped in newspapers donated by the local publishers, and everything else is dumped into the basket without wrapping—no string, no loss of time necessitating more help; only eggs are put in sacks.

The result of all this is that hundreds of people are lining up every morning at these municipal markets with their market baskets on their arms who have not had a market basket in the house before in years. The food is furnished at from a third to a half cheaper than it ever was before, and in the aggregate the saving to the people on the cost of necessities is enormous.

In view of the fact that a food shortage is inevitable, owing to the fact that the United States has undertaken to and will feed the allies, this is a great good step in the right direction. We are here raising more food by the municipality, and selling it to our citizens and taxpayers at actual cost. We recommend the example as worthy of emulation all over the country.

BIG BANQUET TUESDAY EVE FOR BATHHOUSE BOOST

Tuesday evening's big boost banquet is to be pulled off at Fraternal Hall, for the benefit of the campaign being carried on all over the city for public playgrounds, public parks and a public bathhouse. The west side is naturally especially interested in the proposed municipal bath, for the reason that it is to be located over there, near the tunnel and Washington school, on land donated to the city for that purpose by John Nicholl, but they are also strong for the parks and playgrounds part of it, also, and will vote solid for both of the bond issues, or nearly so. It is safe to predict that the west side will roll up a larger majority for both propositions than the east side, population considered.

The feast will begin at 7:30 sharp, and there will be five-minute talks by a number of prominent speakers from both sides of the city and from other sections, also.

NEW SHIP-BUILDING PLANT SELECTS WEST SIDE SITE

The News is just trying to tell a good story it has up its sleeve, about a big shipbuilding plant that has selected a site on the southern waterfront, but those handling the deal have pledged us to secrecy for the present, for good business reasons. We have seen the telegram passing between San Francisco and New York about the deal, and it seems certain that it will be closed in a week or two, in which event there is going to be something big stirring over at Point Richmond, and all over town, as far as that is concerned, for the outfit will take government contracts to build ships for the maritime blockade menace, and will rush their plant to completion as soon as money can be got.

The bargain has been made for most of the land required, but there is a strip yet to be arranged for, with every indication that no trouble will be experienced regarding it.

$5,000,000 TERMINAL CO. BENEFIT TO "THE POINT"

Now that it is positively known that the big $5,000,000 terminal company is a reality, and is to get busy with actual work some time the coming fall, the people of the west side of the city have every reason to feel jubilant over the prosperity that is being thrust upon them and soon to be starting them in the face. This is the biggest thing to come to Richmond since the Standard Oil company located here, and as all of its operations are on the water front of the southwest section of the city, Point Richmond will naturally feel the first benefits, for a small army of men will have to live over there during the two years of construction work, and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of all kinds of supplies will be purchased in that immediate neighborhood.

The rock quarries are located over there, close to the land from which the new docks and warehouses are to jut out from the municipal highway and tunnel is there, through which most of the traffic must pass to and from the great work that is to be carried out; the Belt Line railroad is right there, to transport material; the Richmond Pressed Brick Co. works are also adjacent, and the Cutting canal through which a part of the great rock fill is to be

POINT NOTES

Seeing that sign, "Hunters Home" on one of the Point edifices, reminds us to ask what ever became of the old gun club that used to shoot clay pigeons and everything else in sight, composed of Vic Fenner, Oliver Wylie, Pat Dean and a lot of other fellows? Why, when that gang got to shooting there was no safe place on the townsite, unless it might have been straight ahead of them. Now Wylie is shooting at burglars and sitch, Fenner is shooting dollars into his cash register and Pat Dean don't shoot off anything but his mouth, and not much of that. Let's reorganize. Remember the time when the Hercules Gun Club came down and we beat 'em. And one time when Jim Owens was mayor and the council had a feed at one end of Wylie's cafe and the gun club at the other, and soon one couldn't be told from the other? Ah, "them was the happy days!"

John Nicholl continues to splat paint all over the Point section, under supervision of George Lee and Zeb Knott. And as soon as everything is painted we are going to tackle him to build twenty new houses. John is easy—when you know how.

Julius Stiefvater is so interested in the bathhouse proposition that he has received not to take another bath until the new bathhouse is erected. Gee! Let's vote, or solid, and rush construction!

Comrade Nath is a little too old to enlist this time, but he would if he could, and every time an auto goes by flying the flag he salutes. Nobody more loyal than the old boys in blue.

One of the most pleasant walks to be found in or around the city is through the tunnel and out over the municipal highway. It is about two miles out to the wharf, but it's worth the walk, and affords one of the grandest views around the bay.

Wharfinger Misner reports, good progress being made in the rock fill for the bulkhead and soon there will be a lot more new land over there for factories to built upon, and a channel that ocean-going ships can sail up to without touching bottom.

THE SPOTLIGHT

By the OLD MAN.

Bill Davis and this scribe had it all put up to get the paper out early, and then take in a swell cafe, and skate on the ice, and see the pretty girls dance hootchie-coutchie—what ever that is—and eat six lobsters fried in grape juice. That was a fine pipe dream, but we had to come out of it, for about that time we got a phone message from the 2x4 ranch to be sure and get home early, and bring out some liver and bacon and sugar and coffee and a sack of flour and a ton of coal and a few other things. And at about that moment here came Mrs. William Davis from San Francisco, to spend Sunday with her worse half, Doretha. "Ain't we married men got any rights on this earth at all? We have not! Life is just one strenuousness after another, and we are in favor of organizing a men's rights association right away, to be made up of downtrodden worms, sometimes alluded to as Father."

We are sorry to announce that a hundred women went to Oakland yesterday to get some trading stamps to help fill out their partially completed books. Probably the merchants had better fill out the uncompleted books, but be that as it may, the women are showing a very bad spirit in this foolish stamp matter. It is not to their credit, and we do not propose to shrink saying so. It is their privilege to spend all the money in Oakland, which their husbands earn in Richmond if they want to, but it is unpatriotic, bad business, suicidal and bad for everybody, themselves included.

And now the judge before whom Lottman is being tried for killing the Oakland policeman by running him down with an automobile says that unless it be shown that the defendant was drunk at the time he will dismiss the case. From current report that ought not to be very hard to prove.

Teresa Rizzi of Richmond has just got married to Sebastian Quilico of Crockett. Those names sort of sound like a gin fizz.

Next Sunday will be Mother's Day, and we should all wear a white carnation and be kind to Mother. Father, dodgins him, don't deserve any day.

We are glad that you to muzzle the press did not pass Congress for this scribe would have been hit hard, and would have to get one of those wire muzzles the canines wear. We are so in the habit of snitting things right out in open meeting that we don't know much about that soft pedal business.

Sumer Crosby is being sued for divorce by his wife, daughter of Hooper, the timber man who shot the yep who carped at him in here and undertook to run for state senator in 1913, and we had the supreme pleasure of setting off a bunch of firecrackers and pinwheels under his political coat-tails at the time. He impressed us at the time as being just a common snob more than anything else.

Nemesis Watson dropped in to chat a few minutes last night and reported progress in the campaign. He says he is after all the votes there are on the townsite, except a few he expects Jim Long will get in spite of all that anybody can do. Well, we opine that Neighbor Watson is going to get some votes, all right.

And now that the gardens are beginning to loom up fine and look like grub for next harvest, the slugs and bugs are also showing up and getting in their work. "Always something to take the joy out of life." The slugs work at night and then hide out daytime, and lot of people go out with sprayers and kill them by the light of lanterns. Better get a sprayer and some soap-suds and fight the pests. The drug stores have all that sort of thing on hand and it is cheap. A strong solution of tobacco leaves and stems in good, also, the ingredients for which can be got at any cigar manufacturing shop.

The Reckless-Howler is against both Long and Garrard in this municipal campaign. Sure. That was to be expected. The present city council committed the unpardonable sin when they made the News the official paper of the city. Any knock from the Reckless-Howler, however, has long ago come to be understood in this town as a boast.

J. Dobredonka, a contractor of San Francisco, with his family, spent the week end with his brother-in-law, J. Kirby of Pullman.

Sergeant Blair of Company G will spend Sunday visiting with his wife at Sacramento.
